"BY THEIR WORKS YE SHALL KNOW THEM"

Following is a comparison of the records of the two great political parties during their reign in Kentucky, as extracted from speeches of Gov. Beckham and Ollie James delivered in Hickman last Saturday

REPUBLICAN RECORD 1896-1900

Raised the tax rate in 1896 from 44 cents for the four years, to fall at its close to 47 1/2 cents. Notwithstanding, left in 1900 a bonded and floating debt of over two millions of dollars for Democratic officials to meet, with only $363,334.51 in the public treasury.

Appropriated to public institutions for their betterment, during the four years only $186,909.41, retiring in 1900 with no new departure along this line, and with the institutions in a deplorable condition, under an antiquated system of management.

During the four years the agricultural department of the state government was operated only to pay salaries of officials. The farmers got absolutely no benefit from it, then the commissioner turning back in to the treasury money appropriated for the benefit of the farmer. The labor inspection branch of the department was an absolute nullity, nothing being done to benefit the condition of the working men in workshop, mill or mine.

Expended for public printing and binding during the four years the sum of $184,624.25, or an average per year of $46,181.06. The party is now making Democratic expenditure for this purpose a campaign issue. Gaze upon the Democratic record.

Gave the common schools during the four years an average per capita of only $2.35. In 1899, in desperate effort to make campaign material, "padded" the per capita to $2.70, and left a deficit in and debt upon the school fund of $277,000.00 which had to be paid by Democratic officials.

Republican legislators opposed and Kentucky's only Republican governor vetoed the Democratic railroad rate law, delaying operation of this splendid law for several years, thereby delaying reduction of freight rates to the shippers of the state.

Assisted through members of legislature, in delaying adoption of the Uniform text book law, a Democratic platform measure, thereby continuing for several years the high prices charged for school books by the trust, and enabling them to dispose of a greater number of books at the expense of the tax payer by preventing the adoption of the uniform system.

The deficit in management of the two state prisons, from 1895 to 1899 inclusive, the period of Republican control, was $237,111.07. They thus spent more money in excess of income of the prisons in the three years of their regime than the Democratic party will spend in 1907 in paying salaries of all state officials circuit judges and in maintaining the state fair, normal schools, and pure food station. The excess over these payments is $5,911.07.

Republican governor and orator dropped efforts to collect the big Kentucky war claim, after investigating it. Later after he had retired from office, the Republican governor sought employment as an attorney to assist in making the collection. Look to the parallel column for what the Democratic administration accomplished in this matter.

Established a record within the first few months of 1896 of placing the military power of 1896 above the civil power, true to their instincts of radical hate and Southern Republicanism. Continued this policy throughout the four years of the Bradley administration, and during the short time the unspeakable Taylor was at the head of affairs, using soldiers to prevent the general assembly from electing a United States senator in 1896; soldiers at the polls in 1899 in Louisville, and at Frankfort in 1900 to disperse the legislature. Such brazen violation of the constitution by officials sworn to enforce its provisions encouraged their followers to lawlessness, resulting in the cruel assassination of William Goebel.

Confronted with a bonded and floating debt of over two millions of dollars in 1900, the Democratic officials have met and paid it upon a tax rate of fifty cents. Every obligation has been met, and June 30, last, there was in the public treasury $294,242.98. There will be on deposit at close of Administration $1,250,000.

Total appropriations to public institutions during seven and one half years of democratic rule, reach in round numbers $2,700,000. Every institution has been modernized and is being operated under a most approved system, a new capitol provided for.

The average per capita for common schools for four years has been raised to $3.50, with a record per capita for this year of $3.40, which is not "padded" for a single cent. All debts of the school fund are paid, and State normal schools have been established.

Democratic legislators enacted the Railroad rate law, a Democratic platform measure, and under its operation thousands of dollars have been saved to the shippers of the State. The Republicans this year were afraid to give opposition to the author of this law.

The Franchise Tax law has been put into full operation under Democratic administration, though not with a view of oppressing, but of bringing all to bear their portion of taxation. For the truth of this statement look at the records of the Auditor's Department for 1906. That year the railroad corporations paid taxes on a valuation of $24,910,262 or $124,551.30 in taxes. Compare these figures with those in the opposite column.

Democratic legislators adopted a uniform text book law, a Goebel platform measure of 1899, thereby bringing to the fathers of the Commonwealth a uniform and better system of school books and at less cost than they had before that time been compelled to pay the school book trust. This law enables the family to use the books until they are worn out.

From a deficit shown each year in the management of the State prisons, they have been brought to pay a profit in their operation. This profit from December, 1904, to August, 1907, was $2,969.44. Democratic officials have made most advantageous contracts in the history of the prisons, the Frankfort prison showing an excess of income over expenditures for the month of July last, of $6,821.23. While accomplishing these things the prisons have been modernized.

In no department has the Democratic management accomplished more than in the Agricultural Bureau, Farmers' Institutes; a State fair, a labor bureau, expert lecturers, a forestry department and one of immigration are interesting farmers in every section and the farmer is having more money devoted to his welfare than ever before in the history of the state. The Labor Bureau has accomplished much for life and health of the laboring classes.

Democratic administration has expended for public printing in eight years the sum of $371,651.96, or an average of $43,613.15. Compare these figures with those in the opposite column and you will find an excess per year, under Republican administration, of $2,967.91.

A Democratic governor pressed to collecting the Kentucky war claim, amounting to $1,323,000, and secured its collection for a smaller percentage than is shown to have been paid by any other state in the union for a similar service. He didn't employ his predecessor to make the collections.

DEMOCRATIC TICKET.

U. S. Senator—J. C. W. Beckham.

Governor—S. W. Hager.

Attorney General—John K. Hendricks.

State Superintendent of Schools—M. O. Winfrey.

Commissioner of Agriculture—J. W. Newman.

Lieut. Governor—South Trimble.

Auditor—H. M. Bosworth.

Secretary of State—Hubert Vreeland.

Treasurer—Ruby Laffoon.

Clerk of Court of Appeals—John B. Chensault.

State Senator—E. M. Taylor, of Fulton.

Representative—W. J. Jackson.

Railroad Commissioner, First District—McD. Ferguson.

"PINXIT."

And so he did—to suit himself. Referring to Mr. Willson.

He said the democratic administration had accomplished the wonders they boast of by increasing the taxation.

Well, admit that the tax rate is 5 cents higher than it was when the republicans had charge of affairs of the State.

If the democrats can bring the State out of debt, a debt of two millions of dollars which was left for them to pay, built a handsome two million dollar State Capitol, endowed a splendid State Normal—all for the benefit of republicans as well as democrats, besides paying the expenses of the administration, and leave a surplus of a million dollars in the treasury, on so slight an increase in the tax rate, then why should not the democrats be accorded the compliment of continuing in charge of office? He did not tell you that the republicans administered under a tax rate of 50 cents, then at the close of their administration, lowered it in order to handicap the democrats. The raise was absolutely essential to pay the deficit left by them.

He dwelt at length on the pardon question. He did not tell you, nor did he think perhaps that you knew that before the pardons were granted that petitions were circulated by the residents of the communities in which the criminals were sentenced, and in many cases signed by the judge and jury which tried and sentenced the criminal. No, he misled you, although he said in the beginning that he would attempt to use no smooth words.

He had lots of papers, yes, called them proofs, and records, but what were they? They were clippings from the Louisville Herald, the republican organ. He told you about the recent primary voting (ence, furniture, trees and other inanimate bodies. He showed you a piece of paper and said they, (republicans) had had the records, but now they were gone. No doubt. The Louisville Herald is the only authority that has ever been found on this charge, and it has never appeared in any other paper.

He told you that Mr. Watterson, of the Courier-Journal, wrote a sensible editorial when he said that it was not good policy to vote for a nominee whether he was worthy or not, (referring to the Pennsylvania frauds), and thus reminding you that you should disregard party affiliations this fall and vote for him.

Now he does not believe, he says, that one should vote the party ticket just because it is his party. Then why does the negro vote the republican ticket? Simply because he is a republican, and the majority of them do not know why. Still he exhorts you, as democrats, to listen to his one-sided argument and his denunciation of the democrats, and go to the polls in November and elect him and the republican ticket to the State offices.

Why didn't he define his position on the negro question, having declared in the republican stronghold of the state that he approves Roosevelt's action in dining with a negro, and said he would do the same himself. He was asked to do this, yet he never broached the subject.

Yes, verily, "Pinxit."

Mr. Willson's Speech.

Augustus E. Willson addressed the voters of the County, at the City Hall, Monday night. A large crowd heard him, possibly a hundred of the crowd being negroes. Mr. Willson is the republican candidate and nominee for Governor, and expounded his gospel to suit his followers. Although he announced at the beginning that he would not make a partisan speech, not a single opportunity was missed to score and denounce every man on the democratic ticket, and to earnestly appeal to the democratic voters to vote the Republican ticket "just once" so that he could get control of the affairs of the state. He is a gentleman of pleasing personality, and the audience listened attentively to his address, but not much enthusiasm was shown.

He was asked during the day previous to the speech to define his position on the negro question, as he has been quoted as having approved Roosevelt's action in eating with a negro, and saying that he would have done the same thing. He never mentioned the subject.

Easy to Mix This.

What will appear very interesting to many people here is the article taken from a New York daily paper, giving a simple prescription, as formulated by a noted authority, who claims that he has found a positive remedy to cure almost any case of backache or kidney or bladder derangement, in the following simple prescription, if taken before the stage of Bright's disease:

Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarasaparilla, three ounces. Shake well in a bottle and take in teaspoonful doses after each meal and again at bedtime.

A well-known druggist here at home, when asked regarding this prescription, stated that the ingredients are all harmless and can be obtained at a small cost from any good prescription pharmacy, or the mixture would be put up if asked to do so. He further stated that while this prescription is often prescribed in rheumatic affections with splendid results, he could see no reason why it would not be a splendid remedy for kidney and urinary troubles and backache, as it has a peculiar action upon the kidney structure, cleansing these most important organs and helping them to sift and filter from the blood the foul acids and waste matter which cause sickness and suffering. Those of our readers who suffer can make no mistake in giving it a trial.

Chicago—Mrs. Catherine Waugh McCulloch has the distinction of being the first woman justice of the peace in Illinois, having been elected to that office by the voters of Evanston.

"Squire" McCulloch is the mother of several children and is a noted worker in the cause of woman's suffrage. She also has a husband and legal attainments. William S. Moore, her plumber competitor in the race, was among the first to congratulate her. Accompanying his note were ten dozen American beauties.

TO MAKE NEW DASH FOR POLE.

Commander Peary Gets Three Years' Leave of Absence.

New York—The application of Robert E. Peary, U. S. N., for leave of absence of three years, which has been approved by the secretary of the navy, has uncovered the fact that Commander Peary definitely purposes to make another attempt this summer to reach the north pole. The three years' leave of absence during which he made his famous journey to the farthest north ever reached by man—87 degrees 6 minutes—expired on Sunday, April 16, and the new leave begins at once.

Preparations for another dash toward the pole have been well under way all winter, but Commander Peary and his associates of the Peary Arctic Club have been keeping secret their intention, as it was felt that it would be a breach of courtesy, if not of discipline, for the naval officer to announce his voyage until his superiors made it possible by their approval.

The order granting the leave of absence stipulates that the time is to be devoted to Arctic exploration.

Funds necessary for the next trip to the pole have not been obtained in adequate quantity, but it is stated that there is no uneasiness as to that.

Stores K. Jessup and another well-known man of wealth, who caused his connection with the enterprise to be kept secret, furnished practically all of the $15,000 for the purchase of the Roosevelt and the fitting out of the expedition.

Capt. Robert Martlett of St. Johns, N. F., sailing master of the Roosevelt, has been notified to come to New York in May to superintend the fitting out of the vessel.

Shades will again be the dependence of the explorer and he will again follow the American route, making a dash across the ice from his winter quarters toward the pole, which he is more confident than ever of reaching.

October Forecasts.

Welcome, Welcome, sweet October, when the quail shall whistle from the coal man gets in action with his pesky little bill, when the frost and pumpkin poet sings the old familiar strains, and the football gladiators scramble for another's brains.

Unusually welcome, hallowed season, when the wild goose travels again, when the hunter in the wildwood shoots the rabbit in the face, when the sea year's had made over, when up to the new fall stock, when the hot-foot turkey shoulders and the block.

Secretary Taft will be the leading presidential candidate for the month. He will reach Japan on his trip around the world, and when he steps ashore the island will tip up. The Japanese will have him lifted to the Imperial Roof Garden with black and white, and the populace will hold the roof up while Bill and Mutts eat rice cakes together and get a few bottles of sake to the mutual amity of nations.

In our own country, President Roosevelt will proceed early in the month upon his annual fresh water cruise. He will go down the Mississippi from Keokuk to Memphis, while cheering multitudes congregate on the banks and count his gun. Uncle Joe Cannon will buy another thousand feet of lightning rods, backwater cakes will renew the tug-of-war with Epsum salts in the marsh of man, and the cost of living will take a bird's-eye view of the economic proposition.

The autumn nights inspiring will grow a little longer, and the sweet breath of fall on colder weather will grow a little stronger. The suburban shall sell his hogs and think to prosper on it, but the good housewife will take the dough and get a water connet.

County fairs will be in full blast. The heavy fragrance of the roasted meats will coax the cautious nickel from the pants pocket of the loving man. The toy balloon will drag the small boy around the grounds. The man with the long awning on his back will sit on the tail of the angel-buted trotter and slap her to the track with a barrel stave. The man in red underwear will rise to a balloon hanging by his toe nails, and the family that Roosevelt is enthusiastic about will weave through the crowd tied together on a long roller-skate.

The hawk loiter in the corn will only be little balled. The moon in the forest deep will be no previous salad. The moon will be full on the 21st. Campers will go off to Reelfoot Lake to play poker all night and sleep all day. Hog-killing time will fill the air with concern for his near future, and he will bustle around after acorns for philosophic enjoyment of his last days.

The football rooster, full of root, will go off on his Autumn toot, the player with the college hair, the while the horns and trumpets blare, will butt around till he is thrown and someone breaks his collar bone. The only sound of rah-rah-rah will urge the fell and bloody cause, the girls, the man and colors come, will sing and scream and swallow gum. The great fall-back, fierce and stout, will kick a fellow out, kick in his slats and change his face, and maul him with his jaw and the place, and when he shall cease to breathe, will proudly claim the victor's wreath.

For the farmer with the mortgage who is prone to giving notes will serve up the proceeds. From his wheat and corn and oats, he will wonder if his cash in hand will pull him out of the hole. Whether he will have to give a "new" year on his soul.

The hunting season will keep the rabbit on the wing and the quail on the wing. The crack shot from the Hickman Gun Club will range into the country with his burr-proof gun and his hammerless corduroys. He will flush a bird and almost hit a crow, and then buy his game from a native who sports a bored-out army moustache.

The Amalgamated Game Self-Preservation Society will soon require all hunters to carry a large license tag so that all game may know when it is being legally shot at.

Lifsey Shoots Boy.

Dresden, Sept. 30.—J. A. Lifsey, depot agent and telegraph operator at Ralston, Tenn., was placed in jail here this afternoon in default of bond, charged with shooting with intent to kill a young man by name of Ehan French. It appears that the French boy went to the depot to meet his mother, who had been to Union City. The train arrived in Ralston a few minutes after midnight. Lifsey was sleeping in the depot and heard the boy walking on the platform and shot at him through the door of the waiting room, striking the boy in the arm, back and shoulder. He fell to the ground and was carried home and is now in a bad condition and may die. Lifsey was arrested and the case heard before a justice and continued until Wednesday, awaiting the result of the boy's injuries. Lifsey was formerly from Huntington and is a member of a good family there.—Commercial Appeal.

Lifsey learned telegraphy at the office in Hickman, and is well known here. He left to accept a position on the road only a few months ago, after a hard struggle to make his way and learn the business. Sorry to hear of this unfortunate affair.

COURIER REALTY CO.

Lady Isabel Attends a Sale

(Copyright by Joseph B. Bowles)

"What are you reading so attentively, Isabel?"

Lady Isabel looked up absently, and smiled. "I'm only looking at this catalogue," she handed it to him across the table. "It's a sale at the Veringhams—you know, that lovely place of theirs in Sussex, and you remember poor Lord Veringham going smash the other day?"

"Did he?" "Yes, he financed some company, or they unfurnished him, or something," she explained vaguely; "but, as you know, I don't understand finance, Margorie."

"Don't you?" I asked innocently. Lady Isabel laughed a little as she leaned back in her chair. "Well, perhaps I do a little," she admitted, "but only my own. It's a pity they've had to sell Marden Hall," she continued; "but he's so fearfully honest he will insist on paying off all he can; however, I daresay the things will fetch very big prices."

"Are you going to the sale?" "Oh, yes," she answered, "and so am I—I want you to help me by bidding for some of the things."

"But I don't want to buy anything," I protested.

"My dear child," expostulated Lady Isabel, "you surely don't suppose all the people you see at auction sales wish to buy things; why, lots of them are trying to sell."

"How sell?" I patiently awaited explanations. "Well, you see, the art of supplying is to create a demand. Now supposing you bid for things and I bid for them too. It makes other people bid as well, because people always want what other people are trying to get."

"Some people," I corrected gently. "I wish you'd give up that horrid habit of arguing, Margorie; most people do," she repeated; "and then the bidding becomes very brisk, and everybody gets awfully keen to get things away from every one else, and even dealers sometimes lose their heads a little—especially if the things are really valuable."

"But supposing I bid and the thing is knocked down on me?" I said, feeling more inclined to argue. "Oh, that won't matter," she said airily, "because you will only bid up to the reserve—and I will mark the reserve price on the side of your catalogue. It's only decent sympathy and friendship to try and help the sale to go," said Lady Isabel. "Just think how often you and I have been to the Veringhams' parties—just I know they were a horrid bore as a rule," she added hastily, in reply to a look. "But—"

"Unpleasantly—indeed," my dear Margorie, it's not very much to do for a friend."

"Of course it isn't," I agreed, feeling rather ashamed of my myself and after all, as you say, if the things are really very valuable, it would be a shame to let the dealers get them too cheaply."

"Yes," she agreed, "and dealers are horribly tricky, you know. I have asked a good many people to go to this sale, because if outsiders don't go, the dealers will get all the things at knock-out prices."

"My dear Isabel, whatever are knock-out prices?" "Don't you ever know what a knock-out is?"

"No." "Why? It's like this—no many dealers combine together to buy, say, a valuable Chelsea group of figures, but one only bids, and the others refrain from bidding so as not to spoil his chances."

"Oh well, that's rather nice of them."

"And then," continued Lady Isabel, ignoring my comment, "they all meet afterwards, generally at the nearest public-house, where they select a chairman from among themselves, and the thing is put up again and knocked down to the highest bidder, while the surplus above what it realized in the city is divided up among the rest."

I sighed. "What a very complicated world it is."

"Very," said Isabel laconically; "and now, my child, will dress and go to the sale and bid."

I was feeling philanthropic. The room was growing hot and stuffy, and I was tired and rather overwhelmed by a stout man who had again murmured guttural observations in my ear.

The Veringham drawing-room was being sold, and we had just arrived at lot 94. The sale was going very well, and now and again the bidding became extraordinarily keen, and Lady Isabel, who was sitting almost opposite me, never even glanced my way. She had told me to buy for her two Sevres vases, three Chelsea figures, and a good many pieces of jewelry, and she had marked on my catalogue the reserve to which I was to go, but told me not to notice her, as the dealers might think that we were friends.

Amused in spite of boredom, I watched her bidding with a cold business air that suggested knowledge and determination not to sacrifice her friends' valuable possessions to the dealers. However, she did not obtain a single thing, and her look of disappointment filled me with sympathy, because, she told me, she wanted so very much to get the particular things she had marked on my catalogue. She went far beyond the need to which she had limited me, and, bending eagerly forward, only relinquished the jewelry to a higher bid of half a sovereign.

At last the sale (excepting for the rooms that she said were not worth bothering with) was over, and we were in the sweet fresh air again.

"It was a splendid sale," said Lady Isabel, "and a good deal due to me, you know. Won't the Veringhams be pleased?"

"They ought to be," I said crossly, for I was very hot, and tired too. "I am sure the prices were high enough, but I'm sorry Isabel, that, after all your trouble, you did not get the things you want."

"She smiled as she bent comfortably back in my brother's car. "It did seem a pity," she paused; "but then, you see, I'll get the cheque."

"The cheque," I echoed, overwhelmed by a sudden feeling of indignation.

"Well, My Dear Margorie, Those Especial Things, You See, Were Mine."

nation: "but surely the Veringhams aren't paying you for helping them to sell their things?"

"My dear Margorie," said Lady Isabel in a horrified voice, "what put such a dreadful idea into your head!" "Well, what do you mean, then, about getting a cheque?"

"Oh, well, you see," she said hurriedly, "things one doesn't want—useless wedding presents, and all that, you know—sell so much better when they are put in a sale as part of a well-known collection, and the things I marked on your catalogue—you know, the things that 'went' so very well. She hesitated, and leaned forward to how to a friend.

"Well, my dear Margorie, those especial things, you see, were mine."

IN PANIC-STRICKEN TIFLS.

Correspondent Tells of Terrible Atrocities in Terrible Tiflis.

Of the conditions which prevailed last November in Tiflis, southeastern Russia, Henry W. Nevins, a correspondent, writes: "I found Tiflis in the state of nervous apprehension which the British soldier deserves as 'Jumpy.' And with good reason. The city is in a state of slumming terror. Any loud crash might cause a panic and a panic means massacre. Since two days ago the sentries at all corners of the streets have been doubled. Patrols mounted or on foot move continually up and down. They rush into shops and private houses and drive the suspects before them to the central guardhouse, where the drum-beat is continued. A private order came from Stolypin this week forbidding any more executions by hanging. The hangman actually wanted $100 a man. It was outrageous. No executioner could stand it, least of all the Russian, with its official deficit of $7,500,000. Some consideration is given to foreign creditors, but the public offices have pledged themselves to reduce expenditure. In future the suspects are to be shot. That is so cheap."

"Violence is answered by violence. For ages the city has been famous as the farthest outpost of Christendom against Islam; second, for its hot and phur springs. The day before yesterday I came out of the baths unharmed, but the general who followed me was shot in the neck with a Mauser revolver and is expected to die. He had been governor-general of Jellassavopol, the biggest place between Tiflis and Baku, and, favoring the Armenians, had treated the Tartars with extreme harshness. The baths are in the Tartar quarter of Tiflis and now the Tartars are standing in their cavernous shops and overhanging balconies, terrified at what may happen next. A great rap in their quarters, marked by the black-eyed ruler of former vengeance, shows what they have to fear. Yesterday another officer was killed at the railway station."

"In self-protection the Russian authorities have issued all manner of wild orders. All balconies are to be covered with wire netting to prevent the hurling of bombs. But every house has a balcony; some houses are nothing but balconies, and all the wire netting of Birmingham could not cover them over. No house is to have more than one exit to prevent the escape of fugitives. But every house in Tiflis has a back door. The thing is put up again and knocked down to the highest bidder, while the surplus above what it realized in the city is divided up among the rest."

I was feeling philanthropic. The room was growing hot and stuffy, and I was tired and rather overwhelmed by a stout man who had again murmured guttural observations in my ear. The Veringham drawing-room was being sold, and we had just arrived at lot 94. The sale was going very well, and now and again the bidding became extraordinarily keen, and Lady Isabel, who was sitting almost opposite me, never even glanced my way. She had told me to buy for her two Sevres vases, three Chelsea figures, and a good many pieces of jewelry, and she had marked on my catalogue the reserve to which I was to go, but told me not to notice her, as the dealers might think that we were friends.

Amused in spite of boredom, I watched her bidding with a cold business air that suggested knowledge and determination not to sacrifice her friends' valuable possessions to the dealers. However, she did not obtain a single thing, and her look of disappointment filled me with sympathy, because, she told me, she wanted so very much to get the particular things she had marked on my catalogue. She went far beyond the need to which she had limited me, and, bending

Judge Moore has a new story. It is something like this:

The late General Shafter used to enjoy telling how, during the Civil War, several wounded officers and a few privates were going up the valley of Virginia, when a rain came on, forcing all hands to take refuge all night in a schoolhouse.

It chanced that during the night a skunk had found its way under the floor, and by and by had announced his presence after its well-known effective manner.

The officers all waked up, but, being gentlemen and each supposing that the others were still asleep, they kept silent. At last one of the privates, a German, could restrain himself no longer.

"Mine Gott!" he exclaimed. "Dis is awful! Dey shleeps and I vakes, and I hat got to smell it all!"

Fire started by incendiaries came dangerously near destroying the Mayfield Mirror newspaper building last Thursday night and cremating Mr. and Mrs. George Goddard and baby, who had apartments in the second floor. The loss will be near $2,000.

The loss to the Mirror newspaper company will be about $1,500, and to the building about $250.

Chief Baldrige when he arrived called the attention of several citizens to the fact that the fire was started in four different places on the lower floor.

The Mirror is owned by L. G. Chandler and G. H. Pike.

Obituary.

Mr. J. O. Barnes, cousin of Mr. Hickman, departed this life at 75. He was born in Pike Co., Ky., and came to this city in 1878. He was once a marshal of Hickman six years. He was married May 1881, to Miss Susie Knire. He had not been very well for the last ten or twelve months. He was a member of the M. E. Church fifteen years.

Whatever J. O. Barnes did was well considered and executed in the most unostentatious manner. He lived his principle and was as ready as can be found an embodiment of the Golden Rule. He faced death as he faced every emergency in his eventful career, and such a life is to be yielded up.

The end is always well. God gave him length of days and he in return gave the years back to his Creator full of benevolence to his fellowmen. He has gone to meet his comrades now who are broadcast on that shore where deeds of mercy and heroism done on earth that are wrought into crowns of eternal reward.

His memory to those who knew him eminently will become as sweet income from the past, at events and his life stands nobly forth as an example founded on truth that welcomes duty in every form and knew no fear.

Now to his children all hearts go out in sympathy as we stand bowed heads in the presence of a loss. Time never obliterated to him all his peace and rest, and as the sands of life were slipping past, he might have truly felt with the poet:

Sunset in the evening star,
And one clear fall for me,
And may there be no mourning at the bar,
When I pass out to rest,
Twilight and evening bell,
And after that the dark.
And may there be no sadness of farewell
When I embark;
For though from out our bosoms our love
And place
The flood may bear me far,
I hope to see my pilot face to face
When I have crossed the bar.

know that he charged at the head of a band of men, but he charged all right, killed two of the Yankees and wounded the third and thus did the

TWO PATHS IN LIFE.

Just in front of every young man
and young woman who reads this department are two paths leading into the future, and it is for them to select which path they will journey in.
To aid them in selecting are their neighbors, some of whom in early life selected one path and others the opposite. The neighbor who made the wise choice can be seen returning to his home for the evening meal, his face radiant with joy as
the children meet him at the gate,
each one endeavoring to get the first kiss. The other neighbor goes home through the alley, his step is unsteady, his face flushed from dissipation, the children flee to the mother as he approaches. These two neighbors had an equal start upon life's voyage, the difference now so plainly visible is caused by the paths
they selected to travel in at the beginning of the journey. A few years of training in our schools upon the one hand, or on the streets upon the other hand will make all the difference you see in the neighbors. A boy of study and training in a few years moulds lineament of the face into the resemblance of the first picture of manhood, while by a law equally inevitable, idleness and dissipation
bring out all the lower animal faculties, which reveal themselves in the depressed forehead, the hard eyebrow, the coarse mouth so plainly developed in man who chose the wrong path. The boy who selects the wrong path soon becomes a rowdy and blackleg and if he escapes the prison and gallows and reaches the midday of life we find him a drunken loafer, sneaking around the grogshop in hope of securing a treat from some one who knew him in his flush days while he who has chosen the other path, as he passes the "mid-journey of life"
and slowly descends the slope towards age, grows daily richer in the love and esteem of those around him;
and in the bosom of the family that gathers around his hearth, lives over again his happy youth and earnest manhood. What different picture is presented in the fate of him who has chosen the returnless downward path. The shadows deepen as he descends the of hill life.
He has been successively useless, a jest and a burden to society and when he dies there is not a soul to wish his life had been prolonged.
Two lives like these lie in possibility enfolded within every infant born into the world. Let every young person who reads this department study
well the pen painting of these two lives and select the right path upon which to start upon life's journey.

HOW TO BEGIN MARRIED LIFE.

In the first solitary hour after the ceremony, take the bridegroom and demand a solemn vow of him and give him a vow in return. Promise each other, sacredly, never, not even in jest, to wrangle with each other,
never to bandy words or to indulge in the least ill-humor. Never, we say, never! Wrangling in fact, and putting on an air of ill-humor merely to tease, becomes earnest by practice.
Mark that! Next, promise each other sincerely and solemnly, never to keep a secret from each other, under whatever pretext, and whatever excuse it might be. You must continually, and every moment, see clearly into each other's bosom.
Even when one of you have committed a fault, wait not an instant, but confess it.

And as you keep nothing from each other, so, on the contrary, preserve
the privacies of your home marriage
state and heart from father, mother,
sister, brother, aunt and all the world.
You two, with God's help, build your own quiet world. Every third or fourth one you draw into it with you will form a party and stand between you two. That should never be. Promise this to each other.
Remember the vow at each temptation. Your souls will grow, as it were, to each other, and at last become as one. Ah, if many a pair had, on their marriage day, known

this secret, how many a marriage were happier than, alas, they are!

KEEP STRAIGHT AHEAD.

Pay no attention to slander or gossip-mongers. Keep straight on in your course, and let their backbitings die the death of neglect. What is the use of lying awake nights brooding over the remarks of some false friend that run through your brain like forked lightning? What's the use of getting into a worry and fret-
over gossip that has been set afloat
to your disadvantage by some meddlesome busybody, who has more time than character. These things can't possibly injure you, unless indeed, you take notice of them and in combating them give them character and standing. If what is said about you is true, set yourself right at once; if it is false, let it go for what it will fetch. If a bee stings you, would you go to the hive and destroy it? Would not a thousand come upon you? It is wisdom to lay little respecting the injuries you have received. We are generally losers in the end if we stop to refute all the backbiting and gossipings we may hear by the way. They are annoying, it is true, but not dangerous so long as we do not stop to respond and scold. Our characters are formed and sustained by ourselves and by our own actions and purposes, and not by others. Let us always bear in mind that calum-nists may usually be trusted to time and the steady justice of public opinion.

A GOOD WIFE.

We recently received a letter from an old friend, in the sunset of life, conveying to us the sad news of the death of his wife. Among other beautiful things he says: "My domestic enjoyments have been perhaps as near perfection as the human condition permits. She made my home
the pleasantest spot to me on earth.
And now that she is gone, my worldly loss is perfect." How many poor fellows would be saved from the penitentiary and the gallows and from suicide, every year, had they been blessed with such a wife. "She made my home the pleasantest spot

Does Your Heart Beat

Yes, 100,000 times each day.
Does it send out good blood or bad blood? You know, for good blood is good health;
bad blood, bad health. And you know precisely what to take for bad blood—Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Doctors have endorsed it for 60 years.

One frequent cause of bad blood is a sluggish liver. This produces constipation, promotes indigestion and the blood becomes impure.
Keep the bowels open with Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

to me on earth." What a grand tribute to that woman's love, piety and common sense. How different the testimony of an old man recently hung for murdering his wife whose last words before dropping into eternity were: "I did not intend to kill
my wife, but she was a very aggravating woman." Let every wife who reads this ask herself: "Which am I?"

A weak Stomach, causing dyspep-ailments disappear. Dr. Shoop,

of Racine, Wis., will mail samples free.
Write for them. A test will tell.
Your health is certainly worth the sample trial. Sold by All Deal-

sociation will convene at Poplar

invited to attend.

Dogs That Clean Sewers.

The municipality of Nice has organized a troop of dog scavengers for the cleaning of the sewers. Some of the sewer pipes are too small to allow the passage of men. The dogs have been trained to drag a cord with a brush at one end of it from one end of the pipe to another. The system is meeting with success.

Stomach troubles, Heart and Kidney ailments, can be quickly corrected with a prescription known to druggists everywhere as Dr. Shoop's Restorative. The prompt and surprising relief which this remedy immediately brings is entirely due to its Restorative action upon the controlling nerves of the Stomach, etc. Sold by All Dealers.

Art of Conversation.

We are born to inquire after truth;
It belongs to a greater power to possess it. It is not, as Democritus said hid in the bottom of the deeps, but rather elevated to an infinite height
in the divine knowledge.—Michael L.
Montaigne.

Dirty pots often prove injurious to the plants placed in them. They may contain an injurious disease.

your druggist some Little Candy Cold Tablets called Preventics. Druggists

Preventics, for they are not only sickening. Taken at the "sneeze fluenza, Bronchitis, LaGrippe, etc.

Hence the name Preventics. Good
